The International Multidisciplinary Leadership Conference with the theme "Global Leadership of the 21st Century" is an annual event that aims to explore and analyze the key challenges, trends, and opportunities of leadership in today's rapidly changing global landscape.

The conference brings together scholars, practitioners, and policymakers from various disciplines, including business, politics, education, psychology, and sociology. By adopting a multidisciplinary approach, the conference seeks to foster a comprehensive understanding of global leadership and promote dialogue and collaboration among diverse stakeholders.

The primary objective of the conference is to provide a platform for sharing cutting-edge research, insights, and best practices in global leadership. Through keynote speeches, panel discussions, and paper presentations, participants have the opportunity to present their work and engage in meaningful discussions on the most critical issues facing leaders in the 21st century.

Another objective of the conference is to explore new theories, models, and frameworks of global leadership. By examining emerging concepts and trends, participants can contribute to the development of innovative approaches to leadership that are relevant and effective in a globalized world. The conference also encourages the exploration of culturally diverse perspectives on leadership, highlighting the importance of inclusivity and cultural intelligence in leading diverse teams and organizations.

Furthermore, the conference aims to facilitate networking and collaboration among professionals, researchers, and policymakers in the field of leadership. Participants can establish valuable connections and partnerships that can lead to joint research projects, cross-disciplinary collaborations, and knowledge-sharing initiatives. This networking aspect of the conference helps build a global community of leaders and leadership scholars, promoting ongoing dialogue and collective efforts towards addressing global leadership challenges.

International Multidisciplinary Leadership Conference with the theme "Global Leadership of the 21st Century" tackles the complex and dynamic nature of leadership in a global context. Through its objectives, the conference aims to advance knowledge, foster collaboration, and inspire action towards effective leadership practices that can positively shape the world in the 21st century.
